3 in 4 Americans say they live within walking distance of a local park or other recreational facility

85% of Americans support efforts such as the 10-minute walk campaign

Americans on average visit their local park and recreation facilities more than twice a month

68% of Americans visited a local park and/or recreation facility within a month of participating in the survey

78% Americans indicate they want to increase park and recreation funding

68% Americans visited a local park and/or recreation facility within a month of participating in the survey

76% of Americans are more likely to vote for politicians who make park and recreation funding a priority

More than 9 in 10 Americans agree that parks and recreation is an important local government service